Researchers have speculated that proteasome dysfunction might play a key role in tauopathies, but they have struggled to demonstrate this in mouse models, Schmitt-ulms noted.

The body's storehouse for extra energy is adipose tissue, more commonly known as body fat.